War Summary of The Latest Events

The British captured enemy trenches south of Iniepvat Wednesday, according to the midnight omchal report from France. The capture of 200 yards of trenches in this zone has straightened out the British line and improved their position. The enemy's artillery broke out violently during the day, but the British brought their heavy guns to bear and silenced the German batteries in three different areas. The Wednesday British report stated that the enemy in this sector gained a temporary footing in the British trenches during the night, but was ejected. The Germans returned to the attack for the second time, and were again repulsed with heavy losses.
It was a day of great activity for aircraft on both sides, but the British airmen proved their superiority by destroying four hostile craft and bringing down many others. The remainder of the enemy's machines were pursued to their aerodromes. The mastery of the air has been definitely wrested from the Germans. Bombing raids and reconnaissances were successfully carried out at several points along the line. In the fighting north and south of the Somme it has been clearly demonstrated that Germany no longer possesses reserves sufficient to obviate the necessity for the transfer of troops to threatened areas. The steady pounding of the enemy's positions and the persistent, if slow, advance of the Allied lines eastward must ultimately break down the morale of the most seasoned troops. The taking of enemy trenches in this region means the capture of seemingly impregnable dugouts 30 to 40 feet deep, with bewildering traverses and galleries most elaborately constructed.
Two years of systematic preparations have converted the western German lines into a series of underground forts, but the Allied artillery makes retreat for the defenders impossible, and turns their scientific defences into traps from which there is no escape when the Allies choose to advance.
One correspondent who has visited the enemy's underground world describes the dugouts as shellproof caves. But they are no longer proof against Allied guns and infantry.

In the Verdun zone the French made an advance between Fleury and Thia-umont work and took 200 German prisoners. Severe fighting took place in the Belloy and Estrees sectors, south of the Somme, where the French menace Peronne. After intense artillery preparations the Germans attacked the French positions south of Es-trees which were captured on Mon-

FARM LABOURERS WANTED.

The Western Provinces of Canada have experienced an acute shortage of Farm Laborers for spring seeding and summer work this year.

Even when times were normal throughout Canada moreover, it was always necessary to bring from twenty-five to thirty thousand laborers from eastern points for the harvest season.

As voluntary enlistments have been very heavy and inasmuch as a successful crop is predicted by the experts, grave fear is being felt along the lines of the Canadian Northern Railway, on account of the difficulty experienced in obtaining labor, which means steady work and good wages for all who visit in the districts served by the C.N.R.

For further particulars apply to R. E. McLEAN, or E. McLAUGHLIN Station Agent. City Agent.

in the Belloy and Estrees sectors, south of the Somme, where the French menace Peronne. After intense artillery preparations the Germans attacked the French positions south of Estrees, which were captured on Monday, and gained a footing at some points. Defending the roads to Peronne, German guns were very active against the French positions in the Belloy sector. Five enemy aircraft were brought down during the day by French guns on the Somme front.

In the Carpathians, on the Hungarian frontier, the Russians seized two heights north and south of the Kovria Mountain, near the source of the River Pruth. In the Sereth region the enemy continued the offensive south of Brody, but the attacks were everywhere repulsed. In this sector the Russians are approaching Lemberg along the railroad from the northeast. The Germans have thrown in all their available reinforcements in a desperate attempt to halt the Russian advance on the Kovel front, the gateway to Warsaw. Farther north, in the Vilna region, the Germans launched a gas attack, which was repelled with heavy losses to the enemy. The stiffening of the German centre has slowed down the Russian advance, but the enemy has everywhere failed to make any progress in the fierce counter-attacks launched.

On the Balkan front the Allies maintained their gains, and checked the enemy's offensive on the Struma and in the vicinity of Lake Ostrovo, according to an official despatch. The Serbs on the left made further progress. No fighting on a grand scale has yet begun. Along the valley of the Struma, northeast of Saloniki, where the Anglo-French forces hold the bridges, the Bulgars have entrenched. Heavy fighting may be looked for in this area. In the centre in the region of Lake Doiran, two thousand of the enemy were located in the vicinity of Dautli and were driven in by the Allies. A fight between the Bulgars and French for possession of the Komarjan bridge ended in the defeat of the enemy. The Serbs are holding on to their positions on the left at Lake Ostrovo, where they occupy important heights, from which the enemy is trying to dislodge them.

Greece and Roumania are still on the fence, but the opening of the campaign has stirred both countries to a high pitch of excitement. The Greek Government apparently is anxious about the attitude of the Venizelists, and has officially announced that the Bulgars will not enter Seres, Kavala or any other important Greek city. In the meantime the Allies have closed their centre against the enemy's advance, while the Serbs, stiffened by the Russian reinforcements, are making progress despite the Bulgarian pressure against this wing. An Albanian contingent has joined the Allies at Saloniki. Berlin professes to be more hopeful of securing the continued neutrality of Roumania, but much will depend on the opening engagements. The enemy is putting up a bold front in order to impress Roumania. The heaviest fighting so far is on the left wing, where the enemy is making a determined effort to smash through the Serbo-Russian line. Berlin claims a victory on this wing, but the Allied report says the Serbs are not only holding their own but slowly advancing.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor:—

I crave your indulgence, kind sir, while through the medium of the Express, I call the attention of our townspeople to what will soon become an intolerable nuisance, viz., the stalling of automobiles in front of shops and residences, to the discomfort, loss and annoyance of the occupants of the same. For while few men would think of unhitching a span of horses from a lumber waggon and leave it standing in front of his neighbor's doorway, there will always be some who will not hesitate to leave an old coal box of an auto standing for hours in front of buildings, where free passage out and in is of vast importance to the dwellers therein.

Sometime ago our council made elaborate regulations re the handling of autos, but this point seems to have been overlooked. I suggest that their attention be called to this state of things now, as this evil is bound to increase.

living, five were present—Ira B., John N., Mrs. Lydia Schermehorn, Mrs Sarah Abbott, and M. P. The absent one, Mrs. Joseph Bradshaw, with her husband and five children reside in California. In a cool shady place on the lawn were set two tables, which fairly groaned with their burden of good things. About one o'clock, both old and young, surrounded these tables to do justice to the tempting dishes provided by all. The afternoon which passed all too quickly, was spent in games, other amusements and social chat. A couple of interesting letters from Kenneth Wilson, a grandson of Ira B. Hudgins, were read by Mrs. Jas. Wilson. Kenneth's home is in Edmonton, but he is now at the front doing his bit for King and Country. About four-thirty tea was served, after which all dispersed to their homes. "Uncle John" notwithstanding his seventy-one years, is as straight as a youth of twenty, and is hale and hearty. We hope there are many happy and prosperous years still in store for him and aunt Francis.

THE LATE ELISHA RUTTAN
Another of the old landmarks of Adolphustown has passed away in the person of Elisha Ruttan who died at his home on the 20th inst. He was a grandson of the U. E. L. pioneer, Captain Peter Ruttan, who selected as a portion of the grant to which he was entitled as a loyalist that picturesque point jutting out into the Bay of Quinte between Bass Cove and Puch Cove. Here generations of Ruttans have lived, and no other name has entered against these lands in the registry office. Upon this farm Elisha Ruttan was born, and here for upwards of ninety-two and one half years he lived, rarely leaving his comfortable home amid its beautiful surroundings of water, foam and woodland. He led a simple life, but was possessed of an unusual amount of good common sense of which he made practical use in the management of his own private affairs, in his study of the public questions of the day, and in his intercourse with his neighbors. The result of his quiet and reserved manner of living was that he owned one of the best equipped and best cultivated farms in the township. He was well posted upon the events of the world and never entertained extreme views, and succeeded in winning the esteem of all who were brought in contact with him, and at the time of his death no man in the township was more highly respected than Elisha Ruttan. He leaves behind three sons, Benson and John upon the old homestead, and Charles, a successful fruit grower in the Niagara district.

TO KEEP UP FABLE OF SUCCESS

Reason Given by Times' Expert for Hun Fleet's Latest Venture.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Times' naval expert discussing the sally of the German fleet in the North Sea on Saturday, says:

"The news that the German fleet has been able to put to sea after the severe damage suffered May 31 is no surprise. The war experience has proven that a ship can be repaired very quickly, provided she is not critically injured. This is especially true when there are such resources available as in British or German shipyards.

"The Germans do nothing without a purpose, and Saturday's naval movements had a political origin.
To keep up the fable of the success of May 31, the German commander must show that his fleet is not confined to the Kiel canal. It may be assumed that every class of ship was present in the German fleet Saturday. The advance was made more to the southward than in May.
The retreat of the Germans after their abortive raid was a necessary part of their tactics of attrition, and justifiable in the circumstances."

GENERAL SMUTS' DRIVE.

Forces Cross Wami River and Approach Kilossa.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—British forces in German East Africa have forced a passage of the Wami River and are approaching the important Town of Kilossa, according to an official statement issued by the war office this evening. The statement says:

"Lieut.-Gen. Smuts reports the British, advancing from Nguru Mountains, encountered at nightfall of the 16th a strong enemy force holding the passages of the Wami River on the road to Ngororo. Fighting continued till the night of the 17th, when the enemy retreated. The British occupied the crossings at dawn and are now constructing bridges. Meantime Lieut.-Colonel Vandevanter inflicted severe losses on the enemy near Kidete Station, on the Central Railway, and is approaching Kilossa.

"Further east British columns are moving on Dares-Salaam, supported by naval operations on the coast."

BOTH CLAIM SUCCESS

Fierce Fighting Is in Progress on the Eastern Front.

Capture of Cherwische Farm and Village of Toboly on the Western Bank of the Stokhod River Gives Big Advantage to Russian Forces —Hard Fighting in Carpathian Passes.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Fierce fighting continues in the region of the Stokhod, on the eastern front, where the Russian advance menaces both Kovel and the German salient at Pinsk. The battle on the crest of the Carpathians is also still raging, both sides claiming minor successes.

Petrograd and Berlin in official statements regarding the eastern front claim successes in the fighting that has been raging without pause for the last 24 hours on the Stokhod sector between Rudka and Cher-wische, about 40 miles north-east of Kovel. The Russian War Office reports the capture of the Cherwische farm and of the village of Toboly, three miles to the west and on the western bank of the Stokhod. This village was officially reported in Russian hands in Saturday's Petrograd statement, but since has changed hands several times. "It finally remained in our possession," says Sunday's report, adding that six officers and 600 men were made prisoners.

Berlin, on the other hand, reports a successful Teuton counter-attack in this region and the capture of six

Muscovite attacks here were re-

Indirect admission that the town

Teutons were "driven back to Jab-

DEMANDS EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

President Wilson Sends a Note to Railroad Executives.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—President Wilson indirectly served notice on the railroad executives Sunday that he had no intention of yielding in his demand for an eight-hour day as a means of averting the threatened strike. He also made clear his position on arbitration. He said:

"What I am proposing does not weaken or discredit the principle of arbitration. It strengthens it, rather.

"It proposes that nothing be conceded except the eight-hour day, to which the whole economic movement of the time seems to point, and the immediate creation of an agency for determining all arbitrable elements in this case in the light, not of predictions nor forecasts, but of established and ascertained facts."

The direct effect of this strategic move from the White House was somewhat bewildering to the railway executives. They have heard from leaders of the brotherhoods and Congressional sources that as a last resort the President will appeal to Congress for temporary Federal receiverships.

WELCOMED WOUNDED

ARRIVAL IN SWITZERLAND OF CONVALESCING PRISONERS.

Thrilling Reception Accorded to Wounded British and Colonial Soldiers From German Camps—At Every Point of Their Journey They Were Literally Showered With Flowers and Gifts.

JAMES CUSIN, president of the Toronto Swiss Society, gives the following detailed account regarding the triumphant arrival in Switzerland from Germany of a large number of British and colonial soldiers, which he received from his native country recently. The party consisted of 304 English Tommies, 32 officers, a number of Sikhs and Gurkhas, two Japanese, and a large number of Canadians.

The information says: "Having left Constance, Switzerland, this first convoy of English prisoners convalescing coming from German camps, has had from Constance to Chateau d'Oex, a most triumphant trip across Switzerland. The heroes of Yser, Ypres, the Marne, and de Vimy, have been welcomed and covered with flowers. In Zurich the reception was enthusiastic. At Berne, the capital, an immense crowd was on the platform of the station and the diplomatic body was represented by Mr. Beau, the French ambassador.

"The number included the English minister, Grant Duff, and most of the members of the British legation, who had left the night before to welcome the wounded soldiers. The officers and the English soldiers in khaki, who were on the train, were all standing at the windows of the car greeting the crowd by waving their caps and shouting hurrahs for Switzerland.

"The cars were literally overflowing with flowers, and Swiss and English flags, foods, cigarettes, and gifts of all kinds. The wounded could not hide their emotion. The English prisoners at Berne incited a lively interest, the colonial troops, especially the Canadians, Australians, and a Gurkha, coming in for especial attention.

"Everybody was touched by the good appearance and sympathetic behavior of officers and English soldiers, all cleanly shaved and clad in clean uniforms. Most interesting were their descriptions of the war and their captivity in Germany.

Many of them were sick and unable to come out of the cars, but all of those able to do so walked to the dining-room of the station where they were served with coffee, milk, tea, and other beverages. The reception to the soldiers continued along the trip at Lausanne, Vevey, and Montreux, where it almost reached a delirium. The British soldiers were so touched that, despite the fact that they were more reserved than the French, tears ran down their thin cheeks. They stood at attention when the band played God Save the King, which is set to the same music as the Swiss National Anthem.

BLUE-BLOOD HEROES.

Part Played by Sons of England's Noble Houses in the War.

When the full story of the war is written it will have no more inspiring chapter than that which describes the magnificent part the sons of our noble houses have played in it—their devotion, their heroism, their splendid deaths for the land they love.

Already, although the war has barely reached its turning point, the list of these heirs to coronets they will never wear is appallingly large. Since the Master of Burleigh, eldest son of Lord Balfour of Burleigh, as gallant a soldier as ever bore the historic name of Bruce, perished in the first month of the war, nearly fifty peers have lost the sons who ought to have succeeded to their honors.

These heroes have come from all grades of our peerage. One of them was heir to a dukedom, who, if he had lived, would have been premier duke, marquis, and earl of Ireland. Four were sons of marquises, five had earls for the fathers, seven were heirs to viscounties, and twenty-nine were successors to baronies. Six of them were the last heirs to the family honors, and the peerages which should have been theirs are now extinct.

The Marquis of Lincolnshire, Lords Knaresborough, Playfair, Ribblesdale, Gosmead, and Stanford have now no heirs to follow them; though their sacrifice has not been so great as that of Lord Desborough, who has lost two successive heirs in the war within nine weeks of each other.

In this roll of honor, so far, there are comparatively few names that have won fame in old-time battles, such as Stanley, Percy, Clifford, and Cholmondeley—names that recall long dead generations of warriors. There is little, if any, martial strain in the blood of a Goschen and a Mills, a Playfair and a Robinson; but the bearers of these and many other historic names have fought as gallantly and died as heroically as any armored knight of the age of chivalry.

Young Lord Weymouth, a boy of twenty, who died so bravely a few weeks ago, had plenty of fighting blood in his veins, and proved himself a worthy descendant of his ancestor, Sir John Thynne, who won his knightly spurs so valiantly on the field of Musselburgh more than three centuries and a half ago. Lord Bridport's heir, who gave up his brave life one June day last year, had in his veins the blood of England's hero, Lord Nelson, and also of that grand old sea-dog, Sir Samuel Hood, Admiral of the Blue.

Lord Spencer Douglas Compton, son of the Marquis of Northampton, who died a year ago, could look back to a long array of fighting ancestors.

Generation after generation, the Comptons were among the doughtiest warriors of England. There was a Compton in every battle in the Civil War, including the third earl, who, with his father and all his brothers, fought so bravely for their King at Edgehill and Banbury and in many another battle.

Lord Arthur Hay, heir to his brother, the Marquis of Tweeddale, who died in the second month of the war, had one ancestor who fell on Flodden Field, and another who commanded

A WAR-TIME NOVELTY

"GREटना" TAVERN A UNIQUE DEVICE IN BRITAIN.

Interesting Public House Which Has Been Fitted Up in Carlisle Was Formerly a Post-Office and Is the Model Upon Which Other Supervised Drinking Houses Will Be Started—Tried Out on Navvies.

IN working its way through a maze of difficulty surrounding liquor evils in munition-manufacturing districts, the British Central Control Board has made many innovations. The board is the State Commission charged with the administration of the new liquor-selling regulations designed to prevent drunkenness among munition and shipyard workers. Already in the areas under its control the number of police court convictions has been reduced by about 40 per cent. The shortening of the hours of sale, the no-treating order, the drink-it-on-the-premises order, and the prohibition of credit have achieved a considerable reform. In some cases, to wipe out undesirable conditions, the board has had to close up public-houses, and in others to insist upon radical changes. Its reforming work has cleaned out many dives that were a most distinct menace to the workers who patronized them. But the latest innovation by the board is the creation of a State tavern in Carlisle, a model public-house. Carlisle is to be the site of some big munition plants. At present 12,000 navvies have been imported to do the building, and in course of time the factory operatives will follow. It will be easier to alter the customs of the operatives, when they begin to establish themselves in their new quarters, than it is to change the habits of the old-timers of Carlisle district, and now that the "Gretna" tavern has been opened, two others are projected. Some years ago Mr. Joseph Chamberlain tried to bring State taverns into operation, and Earl Grey worked on the same scheme, but it was left to a war commission to undertake real State business in them.

Much interest is shown in Britain in the scheme, for if successful, it may pave the way for an extended Government system, thus controlling the liquor evil as it can be controlled in no other way. The Gretna tavern is a converted post-office, and in both interior and exterior presents a new type of public-house. It is as far removed from a Gothenburg Bolag tavern or a German Bier Halle as from a British public-house of the old sort. It is neither dingy, like the pothouse, nor garish, like the new, nor "quaint," like the still newer fancy imitations of antique architecture. It is a solid stone building of dignified aspect, occupying a commanding position in a dignified street. Inside the two principal rooms are a long open bar, formed out of the old selling counter, and a large hall behind which was the sorting room. The latter serves the purpose admirably. There is a counter at which various things will be sold, tables for meals and minor refreshments.

CONTRASTS IN ICE

A Curious Land of Fire and canoes and Glaciers

Iceland is known as a "trasts." The land of Iceland comparatively small compact, ice, volcanoes, glaciers. There is magnificent scenery desolate plateaus. It has 100 volcanoes, of which the Hecla, 5,100 feet high. The sands of craters in Iceland among them being Askja, of thirty-four square miles.

Of glaciers there are more with aggregate areas of square miles. The large Not far from Hecla is the geyser region, where there hot springs. The Great Geyser is 100 feet in diameter. One found to have water at a depth of 262 degrees F., which is the hottest spring in Iceland. One-eighth of Iceland is den, and there are ice churches, of which the highest Jokull, 6,424 feet.

There are not many people in Iceland. The capital is with a population of 11,000 that the two chief towns 2,080, and Isafjord, 1,850. The people of Iceland are unusually intelligent, and it states that "perhaps country of Europe are so in proportion to the population and sold as in Iceland."

the KING, which is set to the same music as the Swiss National Anthem.

"At five o'clock they reached Montreux, where breakfast was served on the terrace of Hotel Swiss, having in front of them one of the most beautiful panoramas of the world, while the orchestra played over and over again, 'Tipperary.' When the train was leaving at six o'clock the Tommies were all waving Swiss flags, while on the platform the crowd was waving Union Jacks with enthusiastic shouts. The pockets of the Tommies were overflowing with chocolates and cigarettes.

"Evelyn Grant Duff, the English minister, made a speech in which he thanked Switzerland for her broad hospitality, referring again to the ties which unite the two countries. He stated that in Switzerland sympathies were not all on the same side, but the subject upon which there was a unanimity of opinion was the treatment of victims of war. He said it would for ever be to the glory of Switzerland to show herself the sister of charity to all. In all the cities through which the wounded and the refugees have passed the people have welcomed them with kindness and hospitality. Turning to the soldiers he said, 'The Swiss have given a great welcome to you. The same people regret your departure.

"All that Switzerland is doing for the interned soldiers is pure charity and good will, none of the generous helpers having any money interests in the matter. Even arguments regarding religion are strictly prohibited."

An Invisible Clock.

A public clock which can be heard but not seen is one of London's curious possessions. It is in the tower of St. Mary Abbot's church, Kensington, and is the only public clock in the immediate neighborhood. It chimes the quarters and the hours, but commits itself no further. It has no dial, no hands, no outward and visible sign of any kind to show that it is a clock. This eccentricity, it is explained, is the result of two causes, one aesthetic, the other financial. When the tower was built in 1897 a clock was suggested as an afterthought, but the architect protested that it would mean the addition of 15ft. to the tower, and the ruin of its cherished proportions. A second point was that the church, having but slender funds, could not afford a clock with a dial. A compromise was arrived at by installing the works of a chiming clock in the belfry without dial or hands.

England's First Scientist.

The first great English scientist was Roger Bacon, who died 621 years ago. The exact date of his birth is unknown, but it is believed that this year marks the 700th anniversary. He was persecuted and condemned and much of his work destroyed so that the extent of his discoveries cannot be definitely known. It is certain that he was centuries ahead of his ignorant and credulous times in chemistry, mathematics and mechanics. Branded as a magician, he was thrown into prison. From 1277 until a short time before his death Bacon was immured in a filthy cell. He is said to have invented the camera obscura, the air pump and the diving bell, and he was acquainted with the uses of optical lenses and the nature of gunpowder, although the projective power of gunpowder appears not to have been discovered until the following century. It is said that during a war Bacon set fire to the chief buildings in a town by using burning lenses.—Chicago Journal.

"Save and Serve."

From across the Channel, where the guns thunder, two messages are borne to us—victory and self-sacrifice. One can never be had without the other. We who live at home behind the fleet's shelter are asked for lesser offerings than the supreme one which is made at the front. But with us, as with the soldiers, the question is one of duty. Each of us who spends goods and services not essential to health and efficiency is putting a drag on the national wheel; each of us who saves and lends to the State, be his means large or small, is doing what in him lies to share in the great national effort, of which soldiers, sailors, and munition makers are the protagonists, but which rests in the last resort on the industry and wealth of the nation as a whole.—London Chronicle.

Dikes and Ditches.

The word "dike" used in connection with flood damage along the Zuyder Zee is etymologically akin to "ditch," the meaning of which is familiar, and for which it is commonly an interchangeable term. But in the sense now employed it of course means an embankment. Holland is the classic land of such dikes, which date from Roman occupation before the Christian era. In the fen neighborhood both ditches and embankments are found. Miles of the latter near the outlet of the Cambridgeshire Ouse protect many acres of land reclaimed from the sea.—London Mail.

counter at which various things will be sold, tables for meals and minor refreshments, a stand for newspapers, a piano, a gramophone, and sundry conveniences. Adjoining is a well-equipped kitchen where all kinds of meals can be cooked. There are rooms for attendants and a manageress, but no sleeping accommodation. No one will sleep on the premises. The only alcoholic liquor served will be beer. Customers must drink standing at the bar. In the hall, beer will be brought to them at the table. The idea is to encourage people to stop for rational recreation by making them comfortable, but not for mere drinking. In the great majority of the 94,000 public-houses in England, Wales, and Scotland, everything has been subordinate to doing "business," selling as much liquor of high alcoholic content as was possible.

The post office was converted to its new state in three weeks, and is a new stage in liquor control in the district. The munitions factory being erected near Carlisle was begun last autumn. The preparation of the ground, the making of roads and railroads, and the erection of hundreds of buildings over an area nine miles in length brought many thousands of workmen to the spot. They flowed over the neighboring villages and into Carlisle itself, where some five thousand are accommodated in lodgings about the town. It was foreseen that the influx of so large a body of workmen, most of whom have been gathered from Scotland, Ireland, and England, would cause difficulties. They have nothing to do in the evenings, and nowhere to go but to the public-house. The local public-houses are equipped for a quiet, rural trade, and quite unfit to cope with a flood of laborers. So the board began to buy them all out, in number about 40. A few have been closed, the others are managed for the board. The "Gretna" experiment is therefore something new. It is a question yet unsolved as to how the conservative British workman will take the new style. British workmen are very slow to move from established tastes. The change from the navvies to factory workers will mean a distinct difference in the class of customer, and the new system has not yet been tried on the factory operative. A distinct increase in the court convictions for drunkenness in the Carlisle district is not due to any failure of the Government-operated tavern system, but to the influx of the construction navvies.

A Huge Auto.

The world's largest automobile, having a carrying capacity of 25 tons, has been built for transporting wool across country in Australia.

"Morgenroth."

"Morgenroth," the haunting death-song of the forlorn hopes of the German armies, is the song which was sung so often in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, and is being sung again to-day.

The words were written by Wilhelm Hauff, a patriotic German writer of the first half of the nineteenth century.

Morning bright; morning bright—Light that leads me to the grave—
Soon shall dawn with summons brazen,
Call me to my death to hasten—
I and many a comrade brave.

Myth of the Doon.

How largely Mr. Black upon his imagination for the "Lorna Doone" is made of W. Hackwood in his book, "Old Times." There were, Doones. The word was sin boggy, a modified form of memory of the faroff time: viking invaders harried the only vestige of actuality is a faint tradition that a few the battle of Sedgmoor, to hangings of Judge Jeffreys, ed the ruins of some wretched recesses of the Badgworth "the Doon valley," finding a retreat in which he reared a family, which managed a living by committing petitions in the district. The Doones, an old man and daughter, are said to have the snow during the winter

The Arrow of St. Ed.

The legend of the death of St. Edmund was curiously corroborated by a lapse of eight centuries. It goes that the martyr was cut down by a tree and, as torture proved to make him recant his faith, he was covered with them. The arrow which he was seen to have been bound and which was found in circumference fell in according to "The Black Legend of the Prayer Book," a pi like an arrow head was found in the wood.

Its Recommendation.

"Do you recommend this book?" "Certainly," answered the bookseller. "It's a book that every one reads."

"But it shows very little I don't believe it has been more than once or twice."

"Quite true," answered the bookseller. "That should comfort you, madam, that it is really worn."

Ireland's Golden Age.

There need be no "theory" of the early culture of Ireland. I for example, that the Abbots of the monasteries, near Athlone, a center of learning so renowned that scholars repaired thither from all parts of Europe, and the great Clarendon sent it presents. And in the art "The Book of Kells," a masterpiece of the Gospel, executed at the time of the golden age, had no rival for delicacy of execution.—London Standard.

A TERROR OF THE SEAS.

This Fish Resembles a Torpedo and Is Just as Dangerous.

His shape resembles a torpedo, and his attack too. Fishermen and bathers in seas where he is found regard him as almost as deadly as the torpedo and far more common in peaceful waters. Fishermen and fish alike are enemy to him, and he will attack with a ferocity surpassing even the shark.
He's called the barracuda.

His body is long and round, and his head pointed. His wide mouth bristles with large, sharp teeth. There are more than a dozen varieties scattered over the oceans, all of them fierce and hungry.

Sometimes they grow to a length of six to eight feet. These giants are the ones dreaded by the fishermen. Even when they have him fast on the end of a hook and line he's a veritable load of dynamite and will attack and bite and snap at the hands that are hauling him in.

Fishermen have to guard against poisoned flesh in the barracuda. Sometimes the big fish eats a poisonous kind of fish, which in turn poisons its own flesh. The barracuda's bite is regarded as poisonous in itself, and the wounds caused by the giant fish's teeth become inflamed and infected.

Henry James' Style.

Stevenson spotted the unconscionable repetition of certain adjectives in "Roderick Hudson," but probably the most marked characteristic of Henry James' style was his passion for adverbs and adverbial clauses. He was the most adverbial of English writers.
You will find more adverbs to the page than even in Meredith. And he had a quaint habit of putting the adverb before the verb when most writers would put it after. One of his ladies (the examples are taken at random)
"thankfully felt," another "quite beautifully and tenderly smiled." And "after all" crops up all over the place.
But one would not have these things altered; they were part of the man.
One does object to them, however, in his imitators, who have learned the trick, but missed the spirit behind it—

World's Future Fish Supply.

The sea beats upon 26,000 miles of

than the circumference of the earth.
All of that vast stretch of waters is earth. Every bay is a harbor where these fish can be prepared for the markets of the world, and the greatest ships afloat can anchor in safety while taking on their cargo of food for the hungry of all climes. In a few years Alaskan fish will be famous wherever ships sail and men exchange the products of their toil. This is but one of Alaska's sources of wealth.

A Woman's — Problem

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. MARGARET GRASS-MAN, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—MRS. GEORGE A. DUNBAR, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—MRS. E. KISSLING, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.

Youthful Diplomat.

Billy, aged four, greeted his mother at the door with the confession that he had done precisely what she had told him not to do. His mother was in doubt as to the exact punishment merited. The confession deserved praise, but there was no excuse for the disobedience. To gain time she sent him into the next room to think over what he believed ought to be done.

Presently the little fellow returned and said very seriously, "Mother, you do what you want, but in Sunday school they teach us to forgive. Do not forget that."

Needless to say he escaped punishment.

Relativity of Space.

It so happened that a new professor of music had just been installed in a certain college for women. Naturally he was the subject of a heated discussion among his pupils to be. Said one:
"Handsome! Why, his nose and the point of his chin nearly meet."

"My dear," cautioned his champion, with dignity, "why do you exaggerate so? You know as well as I that they're miles apart."

Self Complacency.

"A man should pause every now and then and take stock of himself," said the genial philosopher.

"That's all right for a modest man," replied the student of human nature, "but rather a bad plan for the sort of fellow who rates himself a little higher every time he does it."

The Sycamore.

One of the very best trees for street planting is the oriental plane or sycamore. Because of its many good qualities it is rapidly coming into general favor. It bears a heavy crop of large scalloped leaves, which remain on the tree until late autumn, long after other trees have cast their foliage. This variety of sycamore has a stocky trunk, which branches, and a spreading, round topped head.—Tree Talk.

"See that girl over there? She's the the engagement was broken off."

wouldn't have the stone reset for her."

enter into the bonds of matrimony.
She is taken to the bank of the nearest river and an offering to the particular deities that she and her tribe worship is made with all due solemnity beside the stream. The dusky maid is then publicly washed in the river; a bracelet of black and white beads and gold is placed round her wrist, or, if her family are not rich enough to provide beads of gold, her wrist is simply marked with white lines.

She is then dressed in the best of the family wardrobe and is escorted in a procession through the town to show to all beholders of her beauty that she has reached the marrying age. Her hair is fantastically plaited and she is perfumed with scents.

All this done, if she is lucky a number of eligible young bachelors come forward and make offers for her hand and heart, and the match is arranged on a strict cash basis. The preliminaries concluded, the marriage takes place. The bridegroom gives a feast, to which he and his family and the bride and her family all come. On the day after the feast the bridegroom shows his appreciation of his wife by powdering her head and shoulders with fine clay, and once more there is a procession through the streets of the village.

Perfectly Qualified.

"I have called," remarked the aggressive young person in the checked suit, "in answer to your advertisement for a man to sell refrigerators to the Eskimos."

"Well," said the man behind the desk, "what makes you think you can fill the bill?"

"I know I can," said the applicant breezily. "I spent last summer very successfully retailing 'The Lives of the Saints' to residents of the city of New York."

Pinched Him Financially.

An esteemed citizen went into a shoe store in a metropolitan town and asked to see some leather goods. Another minute an obliging salesman was hauling out some boxes.

"That's a nice looking shoe," remarked the customer as the salesman pushed his foot into a shiny right and started to lace it. "What is the price?"

"This pair is $8," responded the salesman as he finished the lacing and ran his hand across the vamp. "Does it pinch you any?"

"Well, I should say that it does!" was the prompt rejoinder of the customer.
"Give me something about $5 cheaper."

Chaldean Tablets.

The clay tablets of Chaldea, probably the very earliest writing materials used by man, were of different sizes, the largest being flat and measuring 9 by 6½ inches, while the smallest were slightly convex and in some cases not more than an inch long. In the same ruins with the tablets have been found the glass lenses which were used by their readers. The writing was done while the tablets were still soft by a little iron tracer, not pointed, but triangular at the end. The tablets, having been inscribed on both sides and accurately numbered, were baked in ovens and stored away in the state libraries.

rate thread which is used for the cross hairs to mark the exact center of the object lens in the surveyor's telescope.
Spider web is the only suitable matterial yet discovered for the cross hairs of surveying instruments. Almost invisible as this fiber is to the naked eye, it is brought up in the powerful lenses of the telescope to the size of a man's thumb, so that all defects, if there happened to be any, would be magnified to such a degree that the web would be useless.

Human hair has been tried, but when magnified it has the apparent dimensions of a rough hewn lamp post.
Moreover, human hair is transparent, and cross hairs must be opaque.

The spiders produce during a two months' spinning season thousands of yards of web, which is wound upon metal frames and stored away until needed.

A spider "at work" dangles in the air by its invisible thread, the upper end being attached to a metal wire frame whirled in the hands of a girl. The girl first places the spider on her hand until the protruding end of the thread has become attached. When the spider attempts to leap to the ground this end is quickly attached to the center of the whirling frame, and as the spider pays out thread this line is wrapped around the frame. Several hundred feet of thread can be removed from a spider at one time.

The spiders are kept in a large room under the supervision of three girls and a forewoman. When not spinning the little workmen are placed in a large wooden cage. Flies are the chief article of diet.

During the winter months the spider colony usually dies, so that an entirely new corps of workmen must be recruited. Not every spider will do—only large, fat fellows that spin a tough round thread are suitable.

Singularly enough, the girls who have charge of the spiders in this English factory are not in the least afraid of them or their bites. On the contrary, they regard them as pets, are able to tell them apart and to call them by nicknames which humorously describe their appearance or their peculiar habits of work.

Former Peace and War Cycles.

Isaiah had an inspired vision of a time when swords should be beaten into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks. By the Amphictyonic council the Greeks sought to mitigate wars between the Greek states, though their efforts did not reach as far as the barbarians, as they called the rest of the world. In the eleventh century A. D. a peace movement called the truce of God spread over western Europe. A peace palace was erected and conferences were held at Liege, and Christendom dreamed the same dream of peace that it afterward dreamed in the first decade of the twentieth century—a dream from which it was rudely awakened by the Crusades.—Christian Herald.

Studebaker Six Plows Through Washed-Out Roads.

When a man drives his car successfully against almost insurmountable odds over roads that are practically impassable, he is quite likely to be enthusiastic about that car. Such is the experience of George Dennison, of Brandon, who recently made a trip in his Studebaker Six from his home town to Camp Hughes. Though he had always found his car ready to respond under all circumstances, he had never before faced conditions such as he encountered on this run. On account of heavy rains there was a bad washout along the route between Brandon and Camp Hughes. Some seventeen drivers in practically all makes of cars were stuck and had to be pulled out with teams. Mr. Dennison saw at a glance when he came to this stretch of road that his Studebaker faced a crucial test and he found it equal to the task of pulling through the mire without much trouble. Furthermore, the car was loaded down with a bevy of Brandon's beautiful nurses who were to be special visitors at Camp Hughes. Many an owner may get good service and he will be satisfied with his automobile; yet it is a test such as Mr. Dennison put his car through that turns mere satisfaction into enthusiasm. It requires a supreme test generally to make an owner realize just how much pulling power and reliability his car really has. Mr. Dennison is naturally convinced now that his car can make good in any task short of climbing the side of a house.

Successful Candidates.

The following list contains the names of the candidates who were successful in whole or in part on the pass junior matriculation examination. Normal entrance candidates who were also candidates for matriculation have been considered in the results.

In Groupe I, under each county are given the names of all candidates who have obtained complete matriculation by passing on the twelve required examination papers, which are as follows:—English literature, English composition, British and Canadian history, ancient history, algebra, geometry, Latin authors, Latin composition, together with the four papers in any two of the following subjects: Experimental science, (physics and chemistry), French (authors and composition), German (authors and composition).

In Group II, under each county are given the names of those who have passed in at least nine of the papers required for complete matriculation and have obtained the minimum required on the whole examination. They have, therefore, failed in not more than three papers. These papers are indicated in brackets after the candidates' names. Full particulars will be shown on their certificates. In order to complete their matriculation they must pass in all the papers

Women's Patriotic Society and Red Cross

Through the "U. E. Loyalty", I.O.D.E.

Appreciative letters of acknowledgment have this week been received from Canadian Red Cross Headquarters, London, England, Personal Property Bag Lady Drummond, a few weeks ago for a large package of bags sent to the Superior Supplies of the Canadian Society Headquarters, Toronto.

A very fine case of hospital and other necessities was sent this week to the Headquarters of the British Women's Hospitals, (service), under the N. U. Edinburgh, Scotland.

Other cases for the British Red Cross are in course of preparation which should be forwarded at the earliest possible moment, as is so urgent.

Do not forget that the need is great for destitute refugees, French and Serbian, still kindly send us in any clothing or goods in good condition, so that we may wish to have shipped, up a bag—for summer wear, of the past, and to people who have been driven from their homes, through the and horrors of war, will comfortable garments, and for your kind thought of them are hard-pressed.

Last week we received a model for the "Comfort Bag" much needed in the hospital tents were taken from the store and are ready for workers willing to help them up. There is also work done on "Housewives," a demand—some of which is completed, and can soon be sent for work to be done.

Come and help when you can. The room is open every Thursday and Saturday afternoon until 5:30.

Billion Dollar Crop Expected

After a thorough canvas of various points throughout Western Canada, Dr. McGill of the Dominion Grain Commission, is quoted in Calgary as saying that Alberta would have a crop as good as last year, that the Dominion would have a billion dollar grain crop and that the grain crop of the three prairie Provinces would be little, if any, behind that of last year.

"The country, as a whole, never looked better than it does at present," said Dr. McGill. "The weather was made to order, as you might say, and I am of the opinion that this year's harvest will be another wonderful one."

Those who contemplate going west will do well to remember that the most fertile districts in Western Canada are served by the lines of the C. N.R., and that this season they can travel from their home districts to destination, Canadian Northern all the way.

Arrangements have been made whereby passengers may travel in comfort, Colonist and lunch counter cars being a feature.

The first of these excursions will be run in August, the date will be announced later.

BIRDS HIGH IN THE AIR.

Out of Human Sight They Can Hear Calls From the Earth.

On Sept. 30, 1894, an astronomer at Shero, England, was studying the sun through a telescope. Every few seconds during the ten minutes he watched a bird was seen to pass slowly through his field, flying in a southerly direction, but with the naked eye not a bird could be seen.

Our ears really tell us more than our unaided eyes about the day fliers which are traveling far up in the sky. With nothing to turn them from their course sound waves carry surprising distances either up from the earth or down to it.

Balloonists tell us how clearly they can hear voices of people who are scarcely visible to them. So we may hear the notes of passing birds which are traveling at too great a height to be seen. The mellow whistles of certain snipe and plover tell us that they are passing along the birds' air line when it is impossible for us to see them. But if we answer we may in time see a black speck in the sky which responds to our call and finally circles close overhead.

On one occasion in Central park, New York city, I heard the flutelike call of a yellow leg snipe which was migrating high over the city. Perhaps he was calling to some companion in the sky.
Certainly there was nothing on the earth to attract him. But, putting my fingers to my lips, I whistled a loud imitation of his notes. Quickly he answered. I whistled again and soon could see a black dot circling high above me. Larger and larger it grew, louder and more frequent became his cry, and within a minute, much to the surprise of passersby, the bird was flying anxiously back and forth just over my head. But, unable to find the bird which had called to him, he soon mounted high in the air and continued his journey.—Frank M. Chapman in St.
Nicholas.

Get Up Right.

Get up right in the morning. Go to bed right at night. Start with joy in your heart, hope in the future, kindness in your purpose.

If it is a dark day never mind; you will lighten it up. If it is a bright day you will add to the brightness. Give a word of cheer, a kindly greeting and a warm handshake to your friends.

If your enemies look up pass them by, forget and try to forgive.

If all of us would bear in mind that happiness is from within and not from without there would be a wellspring of joy in every heart, and the sun would shine forever.

ROMANCE OF GOLD.

How Greaves Sought Water and Found Gold.

For thirty years the memory of a piece of gold-studded ore haunted Richard Greaves, a famous West Australian prospector, who has died lately. It was in Western Australia, where he arrived in 1885, that "Dick" Greaves allowed the gold fever into his veins. For two years after his arrival he prospected, off and on, for gold before its existence was definitely known in the State. He brought £600 in cash to Western Australia, and the greater part of that money was spent in prospecting work. It was a sample of stone, named Beare's stone, that sent him on his wanderings. He was shown the stone, among others, shortly after his arrival in the State, and he tested it, and thereupon decided to find Beare and locate the place where the stone could be obtained. He never found Beare, nor did he find any more of Beare's stone.

To find gold in any stone, however,
Greaves and his companion, Ted Paine, went out on their lonely prospecting trips. Success was denied them on several expeditions, but in October, 1887, they were rewarded, for in that month they discovered the first gold.

The story of the great find is simple, and, told in his own words, is as follows: "As water was getting scarce, and the country very dry, our work on that trip became a quest for water instead of gold. We got to a clay pan, but the water was thick and slimy. We had to set to and pull the dead kangaroos out. We decided to leave the dray and take the horses and test the country round. It was the best bit of country we had seen for prospecting, and so we struck it. Ted Paine struck a floater with a speck of gold in it. To find where it came from was the next move. On October 22nd I came upon the reef, and we took a lot of stone out with gold hanging to it."
From that beginning the mining industry sprang into first-rate importance.

Appropriate.

The worshippers in a certain chapel had some trouble to keep their faces straight a short time ago. During the service some commotion was caused by a gentleman who accidentally ignited a box of wax matches in his pocket and was trying to put them out, while his alarmed neighbors struggled equally hard to help him. The minister, being shortsighted, could not make out the reason of the disturbance, and, thinking diplomatically to cover the incident, he innocently said:
"Brethren, there is a little noise going on. Until it is over let us sing
'Sometimes a Light Surprises.'"—Lonspell which only works when he is on the spot. When he makes a trip to England the spell loses its power—it doesn't seem to be able to cross water and Sam has no way of giving the situation absent treatment.

What is Sam's spell? Some say it is fear, some say it is a stunned astonishment at his colossal nerve. Nobody mentions love. Whatever it is Sam puts it over. To this day there subsists an affection between Premier Borden and Sir Sam which vies with the famous attachment between Mary and her little lamb.

What makes Sir Sam love Borden so? Oh, Borden's kind to Sam you know.

And there the matter stands. Nobody has any better explanation. Of course, the analogy is not on all fours, because Premier Borden doesn't appear to be as firm a character as Mary and Sam is certainly no lamb unless it's the kind of lamb one might raise in Pittsburg but it's the only comparison we can think of that gets anywhere near the tender relations between the Premier and his most conspicuous colleague. Sir Robert is true to the last. He stands by Sir Sam as long as Sir Sam is here to stand by. It's only when Sam is three thousand miles of blue water away from his job of keeping a close eye on 'em that Sir Robert lets Sir Sam's rivals get their work in. And even then they're only allowed to slaughter Sir Sam's friends, Sir Sam himself must not be molested.

Meanwhile the zeal and abandon with which Sir Sam's colleagues fleshed their harpoon in Colonel John Wesley Allison suggests that they would take real pleasure in doing the same thing for his patron and benefactor if Sir Sam would let them. But Sir Sam must be consulted first—Premier Borden sticks to that. With Sam away the cabinet will play but with Sir Sam on Parliament Hill again Premier Borden may expect to get back his spine and rescind these hasty orders-in-council. Nobody will ever believe that Colonel John Wesley Allison is finally disposed of until Sam announces publicly that he has dropped a tear and laid a wreath on the Morrisburg super-patriot's grave.

There is reason to believe, indeed, that the late Colonel John Wesley Allison is not dead—in fact that the reports of his death have been much exaggerated—and that he has simply gone on a journey to the United States where he is still "scratching gravel" but not in connection with the Munitions Board at Ottawa. He scratched once to often and far too hard even for that complacent body and his name has been removed from the list. But that does not head off his activities for other War Offices, although he may find it more difficult to get business now that he isn't a colonel any more.

It is stated with a great deal of frankness that the only reason John Wesley Allison was made a Colonel was to enable him to get business from people who liked to deal with colonels. Of course the fact that he was a colonel of Sir Sam's making and thus had the oblique endorsement of the Dominion Government helped some too but we need not dwell on this point. It came out clearly enough in the evidence before the Duff-Meredith Commission. Allison needed to be an honorary colonel in his business and an honorary colonel he was. It will be probably be found that the

THE "GOAT" SHORN OF HIS TITLE.

Ottawa, August 23rd—And so with one accord and with right good will the cabinet council passed the order depriving Honorary Colonel John Wesley Allison of his honors and his military rank and the Duke signed the order with great heartiness and the goat passed out into the wilderness.

The incident recalls the poem on the burial of Sir John Moore—it is so different. According to Sir John's poet, "they buried him darkly at dead of night with the lanterns dimly burning." As for Honorary Colonel John Wesley Allison, however, "they buried him neatly in broad daylight for fear of Sir Sam returning."

Which is to say that all these interesting events like appointing a Secretary to the Militia Department and putting the boots to Sam's guide, philosopher and friend, Colonel John Wesley Allison, are pulled off during Sam's absence. Out of sight, out of mind, that seems to be the motto of Sam's colleagues. But in sight on our backs. Their courage wilts in the War Lord's presence. What they aim to do is to tie him up while his back is turned, because they haven't the business and an honorary colonel he was. It will be probably be found that the late Honorable Colonel John Wesley Allison is suffering less right now from the withdrawal of his honorary colonelcy than he is from the falling off in business which is the direct result. One does not imagine that Col. John Wesley Allison was ever in love with the uniform, grand as it is—you can't wear the uniform when you're making fuse contracts in the United States—nor with his military duties, light as they were. No indeed, he was an honorary colonel for the money there was in it, and money, as Shakespeare says, is a good soldier and will march.

The episode throws a new light on honorary colonels. Broadly speaking such as are not honorary colonels for ornament are honorary colonels as Honorary Colonel John Wesley Allison was—that is to say for the money there is in it. Let us—so say the honorary colonels who made up the "infusion" of steel manufacturers alluded to by Mr. Lionel Hitchens—let us make the shells of this country and we care not who fires them. Let us fill the munition contracts of our beloved Canada and we don't care who fills the trenches in Flanders. Let others do their bit—we get ours. Thus honorary colonels in the manufacturing or commission business are no great hogs for glory. They are content to remain honorary colonels so long as it is made up to them in other ways.

Occasionally one of them becomes a Brigadier-General but that is usually a sign that he has got all he wants. It is also a sign that the government loves him for the profits he has made and the imminent dangers of Kyte enquiries which he has escaped. Honorary colonels of the business sort may resign to be shorn of their rank, but they never surrender—the dividends. Mr. Frank Bailey gave back $758,000 profits the other day—incidentally it shows what a generous idea of price the old Shell Committee had—but that is no boost for the honorary colonels because Mr. Bailey is not an honorary colonel and probably doesn't want to be.

Of course Honorary Colonel John Wesley Allison deserved all he got as an honorary colonel who incautiously gave the public an inkling of how much money an honorary colonel can make when he has the friendship of the Minister of Militia behind him. No one wastes any pity on him. He nearly gave the whole game away. He was on the way, so we are told, to save fifty million dollars for the British Empire, but he changed his mind and saved a lot for himself. Which reminds us that the old Shell Committee saved thirty two million dollars for the British Empire, which is a sign that they had eaten heartily and were suffering from indigestion. However, they kept it on a shelf where they could look at it and there Baron Thomas found it. Observing that their mouths watered and that there were signs of returning appetite, Baron Thomas suggested that the melon be taken out of the ice box and sent to England. Which was done accordingly.

Munitions Board to Organization of Resources which has been conducting investigation into munition plants Hamilton and other Ont.

This shortage in production has been largely due to the fact that there has been a very inadequate labor sufficiently skilled in munition factories turning out shells and component parts, which have adversely affected the machining and assembling. But these, also, have been making deliveries as soon as when they are fully up to forgings and component parts owing to the shortage of.

The Provincial Commission, in bringing these facts to the attention of the public:

1. To call the attention of the munition industries to the importance of service and the great need of resting upon them as in co-operate and do all in to secure a steady and ample supply of munitions for our front.

2. To urge upon all those ineligible for overseas service who are anxious to voluntarily best in this great struggle those now engaged in work or in the production of luxuries to consider employment as their next best service overseas.

3. To urge Women's Corps to register women work or for work which men for the munitions.

There is no need to emphasize the importance of the high production of munitions. Our boys and the successful endeavors depend upon it. From the highest authorities in Britain and from the small tribute to the partition workers are playing the war to a successful.

The officer commanding Canadian artillery, who the front last week, said that the front will never break. Before, they had munition equipment—everything but All we had was "nerve." have good guns and plenty ammunition. Whereas we were limited to 10 to 15 guns a day, now we use a gun, and one week last going all week night as all important that the munitions be kept up and the efforts to use women plants are meeting with In a number of places registered, and are waiting to work as soon as arrangements can be made and, for instance, 95 were ed last week to the call there which needs 150 to Fifty per cent. of those the call had never been employment before.

Wages in munition plants such as to attract a large workers. Four to seven, dollars a day is not uncommon employed on the plant. "If you can't be the man behind the gun."

DRIED FOODS IN CHINA.

An Art In Which the Natives Were Experts Before Our Era.

"In so far as good cooking consists in making the cheap as attractive and delectable as the most expensive, the culinary art in China is far in advance of that of all other nations," writes Wong Cin Foo, a Chinese writer, in the Hotel Gazette.

"In a land so densely populated the cook becomes at an early age an important member of the social economy.
Not only the preparation of food for immediate but also for future use is his function. Long before Christ they learned to preserve fruits and vegetables by desiccation, compression, pickling, smoking, sousing and candying.
They extended and applied these processes to animal tissue. Centuries ago they did what Americans cannot do today—dry clams, oysters and other shellfish until they are as hard as wood and would keep exposed to the air in any climate for years. They similarly desiccate shrimps, crabs, lobsters, flatfish, sturgeon and the like so thoroughly that they can use the un-boxed goods, if necessary, for ballasting a trading vessel without injuring their quality or flavor.

PARISH REGISTERS.

Records of Births, Marriages, and Deaths Are Very Precious.

How valuable old parish registers, hidden away, maybe in the vaults of a village church, are, is illustrated by the recent offer of £1,000 for the recovery of the parish registers of Cawdor, Nairnshire, for the years 1779-1783, which are wanted in connection with the settlement of an estate.

Through carelessness or ignorance of their value as records, parish registers have gone through some strange vicissitudes. A former clerk of Plungar, Leicestershire, for instance, who combined the sale of groceries with his parish duties, made the registers serve him in a business capacity by employing them to wrap up his wares. Another parish clerk cut the registers up to serve as patterns for the lacemaking of his daughters.

It has been proved that in many cases the vicar only wrote up his record at the end of the year from the clerk's note-book, and that worthy, thinking more of his fees than the instruction of posterity, was content to book only such as owed him money. One painstaking vicar who superintended the souls of Seasalter, however, was wont to append pen portraits of those whom he married, and one wonders if he took advantage of his clergyman's privilege of kissing the bride when he joined "John Housden, a gape-mouthed, lazy fellow, to Hannah Matthews, an old toothless, wriggling hag," to quote his description of them in the registers of his parish.

The origin of parish registers dates back to 1538, when Cromwell, Henry VIII.'s general, issued an injunction to the clergy to keep a record of births, marriages, and deaths. And the explanation of the gaps in ancient parish registers lies in the fact that during William III.'s war with France they were used to assist in the collection of a tax on births and marriages, which was frustrated by the parish clerks, for, as one of them naively notes in his register, "No entries were made for some years to avoid the tax."

Persia's Poet Laureate.

Persia appears to be the only country besides England where a poet laureate has been maintained of recent years. Until Muzaffar-ed-Din abolished the post in 1896, the Court of Teheran had for centuries possessed a laureate, whose duties were far more numerous than those of his British confrere.

According to Narcisse Persin, who spent some years in Persia at the beginning of the nineteenth century, court etiquette prescribed that whenever the Shah traveled outside the capital, his suite must include a dwarf, a giant, a jester, a historiographer, and a poet laureate.

The last two were kept busy, for, while the historiographer had to record for posterity all the doings and sayings of the Shah, the laureate was called upon to celebrate a large proportion of these in verse. M. Persin highly commends this custom, which he found rigidly followed, "for the Shah, knowing that many of his utterances and deeds would be crystallized in an ode, felt bound, on these royal progresses, to speak and behave majestically."

MARKING THE MAN

Origin of Surnames in the Good Old Days of Long Ago.

MANY SOURCES OF SUPPLY.

When Trades and Callings Were Exhausted Then Places and Events or Objects and Personal Characteristics Were Pressed Into Service.

It cannot but be admitted that considerable food for thoughtful reflection is offered in the study of the origination of names. It was all very well when the world was young; but, as a writer says, "As the population increased and communication became possible and easier the supply of single names was not equal to the demand, and people began to get individuals bearing the same name mixed. It was at this time that the surname was thought of and adopted, so that families might be distinguished one from the other."

Trades and callings are in this day represented in the names of Baker, Carver, Shoemaker, Tyler, Chandler, Mason, Cutler, Carter, Saddler, Slater, Butcher, Draper, Thatcher, Fletcher, Hooper, Cheeseman, Turner, Joiner, Cooper, Gilder, Mercer, Skinner, Coleman, Sawyer, Tanner, Spicer, Cook, Tutor, Miner, Driver, Weaver, Gardner, Archer, Merchant, Porter, Wainwright, Taylor, Shepherd, Glover and ever so many others.

Says Clifford Howard, who has devoted himself to this pleasant study:

"Such names as Hall, Stair, Garret, Kitchen and Chambers also record the occupations of our forefathers, who in these cases were engaged in the households of the nobility and had charge of such apartments as the names indicate. Others held higher offices, and from them we have the surnames Page, Butler, Procter, Forester, Steward, Bally, Fowler, and Woodward and Hayward, the keepers, respectively, of the forest and the cattle."

In other localities it was usual to point out an individual by the place of his birth or residence, a custom which resulted in the adoption of such surnames as French, Scott, Welsh, English, Dan, Burgoyne, Cornish and Cornwallis, Kent, York, Chichester, Lincoln, Wells, Washington, Putnam, Hurst, Buchanan, Preston and Bancroft. A great many of this sort were originally the names of baronial estates, which names the barons adopted as surnames.

Those who were not of such high estate were forced to content themselves with humbler titles. Thus John, who lived by the brook, became John Brook, and David, who lived by a giant oak, was called David Tree.

Richard, who lived at the end of town, became Richard Townsend, while his brother, who lived under the brow of a hill, became known as Peter Underwood. Those who lived near the water took the name of Atwater.

At the time family names began to be used the shops of the merchants were not numbered as they are now.

EDITING SHAKESPEARE.

Nicholas Rowe, Poet Laureate, Was the First to Attempt It.

The first folio was printed partly from the earlier quartos and partly from manuscript copies in the hands of players. It did not have the careful editing that so important a work should have had, but it preserved from destruction a number of the plays that had not appeared in quarto form.

Nicholas Rowe, poet laureate and dramatist, in his edition of 1709 made the first attempt to edit Shakespeare in the modern sense. He modernized spelling, punctuation and grammar, added lists of dramatic personae and divided the acts and scenes properly. Since his time editors have been busily engaged in corrections and emendations.

Alexander Pope, the second editor, issued his Shakespeare in 1723, and this was followed in 1733 by Lewis Theobald's edition, whose bitter attack upon Pope in "Shakespeare Restored" led to the latter's making Theobald the dull and pedantic hero of his "Dunciad." The handsome edition by Sir Thomas Hanmer appeared in 1744 and William Warburton's in 1747. Dr. Samuel Johnson's edition was published in 1765. Then came Edward Capell's in 1767-68, George Steevens' in 1773, Joseph Rann's in 1780-94 and Edward Malone's in 1790.

SECRET OF A FLOWER.

How Did the Trumpet Vine Discover the Bared Stump?

If some one advanced the theory that this plant had some unknown power of reasoning you would probably reply that "plants can't reason because they have no mind." You may change your opinion after you hear this story, related by Royal Dixon, who writes entertainingly about how near like human beings in their actions plants are.

The story is about a trumpet vine, the favorite of many an old fashioned garden. About twenty feet from where it grew was an old pine stump with the bark on. One day a fire was built about the foot of the stump, and the bark was burned off.

Immediately the trumpet vine sent forth a long traller across the garden to the stump. It raised the tendrils, felt the smooth surface of the stump and started to climb. Before long the whole blackened surface was hidden beneath the leaves and blossoms of the new vine.

With the rough bark on the stump provided no surface for the clinging tendrils of the vine. After the fire destroyed the bark the vine found a place to climb.

How did the plant know that the fire had prepared the stump? We don't know. Ask the flower.

Cellini's Quick Cure.

Benvenuto Cellini when about to cast his famous statue of Perseus, now in the Loggia dei Lanzi at Florence, was taken with a sudden fever. In the midst of his suffering one of his workmen rushed into his sick chamber and exclaimed, "Oh, Benvenuto, your statue is spoiled, and there is no hope

Paper Rolls in Movie Machines.

The substitution of paper rolls for celluloid films in moving picture machines, made possible by the new "cold" light discovered by the French engineer, Dussaud, which is described to the Academy of Science by Professor Branley, with whom Daussaud studied the new light, is obtained by automatic separation of heat rays from luminous rays, which occur together in all sources of light hitherto known to science.

The quest of an absolutely pure light, devoid of all heat, has long been one of the great problems of modern physics. The electric light is the nearest approach to this ideal, but far from it, as it gives off a certain amount of heat.

M. Dussaud has been working on this problem for many years. The light obtained by his method is so intense that it is possible to throw images from newspaper illustrations, picture postcards, and photographic prints on a screen, even in a lighted room, as clearly and sharply as if they were glass lantern slides.

He Drew the Nine.

On one occasion Mr. Justice Hawkins, who always wore his hair closecropped was on circuit in the South of England, and went for a country walk with a brother judge. Being thirsty the two judges entered a wayside inn in the rear of which were two laborers playing skittles. They decided to join in the game, and each taking one of the players as a partner, entered into the game with spirit.

Getting hot, Mr. Justice Hawkins took off his coat; getting hotter, he removed his hat. His lordship's partner at once stopped playing. "Go on, my friend," said Hawkins; "why do you stop?" "I don't mind bein' neighborly," replied the man, looking at Hawkins's close-cropped head, "but I'm hanged if I be a-goin'

At the time family names began to be used the shops of the merchants were not numbered as they are now, but were known by their signs, which were suspended at the front doors and bore pictures of all sorts of animals, vegetables, birds, flowers, fishes and insects. It was customary to speak of an innkeeper, then, as John of the Bear, or Dick of the Swan, and, as may be readily understood, these names were soon converted into Bear, Hogg, Hart, Bull, Fox, Wolf, Colt, Hare, Beaver, Lyon, Swan, Peacock, Heron, Dove, Partridge, Cock, Finch, Hawk, Crane and Drake, as well as Burt, Chubb, Haddock, Herring, Pike, Perch and others. From vegetables, trees, fruits and flowers we have Bean, Broome, Clover, Birch, Ash, Hawthorne, Hazel, Peach, Flower, Nettle, Vine, Plant, Budd, Branch and Root, besides dozens more.

The shop signs bore other devices, and from these we have such names as Bell, Hammer, Coates, Mantell, Jewel, Potts, Pipes and others.

A great many nicknames remained fixed as family names, the most important being those which referred to the color of hair or complexion, and from these come such well known names as Brown, Black, Gray, White, Reed (red), Blount (fair). Others were given for some personal attainment or characteristic, such as Armstrong, Mitchell (great), Singer, Whistler, Eatwell, Swindells, Strong, Weak, Small, Osgood (well built), Longfellow, Crookshanks, Longman, Whitehead, Broadhead, Swift, Sober, Noble, Hardy, Doolittle, Goodman, Darling, Long, Short, Bachelor, Savage, Wise, Sweet, Moody and others.

To these might be added King, Queen,
Pope, Bishop, Knight, Prior, Abbot, Squire, Earl, Duke, Baron, Lord, Prince and others which were originally given to individuals because of their bearing the titles or because of services they may have rendered them.

There are many more which do not come under any particular heading, but owe their origin to some event which the names appropriately indicate—Joy,

Warming Gold Dishes.

Castle Kilkenny is one of the oldest inhabited dwellings in the world, some of the rooms being 800 years old.
Among its ancient treasures is a service of gold plate. Besides the ordihas the whole series of gold cups used at coronation banquets down to the time of George IV. The gold of the service plates is almost without alloy, consequently very soft and easily mar-

GREAT MARKETS OF PARIS.

Buyers in the "Halles" May Not Carry Parcels of Any Kind.

There are some queer customs and regulations in the "halles," the great Paris central markets. No buyer is allowed to enter or leave the markets carrying a parcel, however small it may be. To carry parcels is the privilege of the porters of these markets. Quaint figures are they in baggy velveteen trousers, blue striped jerseys and big brimmed, round leather hats. They alone can be employed to convey from the market to the street outside your merchandise, whether it be half a beef or only a good fat hen.

Madame has to help in her purchases market women known as the keepers. These women sit at the entrance to the main division of the markets and for a small fee watch over all purchases brought to them. Many of these "salesladies" are wealthy. A portly dame, a small seller, wears a fine pair of diamonds in her ears and a sparkling solitaire on her ring finger.

Another character at the markets is the "cutter." When a sheep is brought to him by the buyer for half a dozen Paris housekeepers he cuts the animal into six portions and divides it among them. The purchasers draw lots for the best pieces and pay according to value received.—Exchange.

On Modern Man.

"The late Emerson Taylor, our consul at Port of Spain," said a Washington official, "bailed from Dry Run, and he had a fund of happy Dry Run humor."

"Taylor once compared a disgruntled brother consul to a Dry Run housewife."

"This woman," he said, "often took a queer, disgruntled view of things. Thus she said one day:

"I don't think the prodigal son was so bad, after all."

"He wa'n't no good to his family," said her husband.

"That's a fact," said the Dry Run woman. "But when he got home, all the same, he knowed enough to keep his mouth shut. If he'd been like the twentieth century man the first thing he'd done would 'a' been to find fault with the way the fatted calf was cooked."

It will be observed that the names are all arranged in alphabetical order and are as far as possible selected from Scripture. It was only with the very greatest difficulty that the clergyman dissuaded Mr. Jenkins, but eventually it was decided to christen the boy simply Abel.—Chambers' Journal.

BUYING COMMISSIONS.

Bad Old System Now Abolished in Great Britain.

Forty-five years ago the system of purchasing commissions in the Army was abolished by Royal Warrant, signed by Queen Victoria, after the House of Lords had rejected Mr. Cardwell's Bill for the "Abolition of Purchase in the Army." Previous to that first appointments in any branch of the service were purchased, and a regulation price had to be given the Government for same. The system may be said to have arisen from the mode by which many regiments were originally raised. During the great wars with France, when the army was largely increased, the Crown contracted with gentlemen of standing, who received a bounty for every recruit and were appointed colonels of regiments. In some cases, instead of receiving bounty money these gentlemen had the privilege of nominating all the officers, and made good their outlay by selling the commissions, a mode which had indeed prevailed from very early times. Gradually the Crown took the matter into its own hands, raised regiments meses the Great, and by many is identified as the Pharaoh of the Oppression as described in the Book of Exodus.

The palace was discovered early in the present year, the report said. It was large and elaborately decorated, but at some time was destroyed by fire, traces of which are abundant. The palace was about 180 feet long and 100 feet wide and contained about 20 rooms. The throne room was a magnificent chamber of about 60x40 feet.

In describing this room the museum announcement stated that "it is probable that this throne room, if not the same, is similar to the one in which Moses and Aaron confronted the Pharaoh, demanding that the people of Israel be permitted to go. The authorities in Egypt admit that a great discovery has been made."

In the rooms were found gold ornaments, scarabs, vessels, and vases. The most interesting find, the report stated, was a collection of relics, partly of the Stone Age and partly of the Sixth Dynasty (about 4500 B.C.), which indicated that Meremphah was a collector much like modern men or nations. The stone implements included knives, razors,

They never went back, and, according to Mr. James McLaughlin in "My Friend the Indian," "became in some sort the ancestors of a tribe of Indians, for the Mandans are thought by some writers to be the descendants of the lost Welshmen. Some philolo- gists have endeavored to prove this to their own satisfaction, and it is said that the Mandans to this day retain in their vocabulary a great many distinct- ly Welsh words. And for hundreds of years they maintained physical and mental characteristics that have raised them above their fellows."

Languages In Switzerland. Both French and German are the "official" languages of Switzerland. Public signs, such as those of rail- roads, are printed in both languages. Italian is also spoken in those parts of Switzerland which are closest to Italy. As a matter of fact, the country is, however, quite definitely divided as to language. The cantons of Vaud, Neu- chatel, Geneva, Fribourg and most of Valais speak French. The canton of Ticino speaks Italian. The rest of the country speaks preponderantly Ger- man. The canton of Valais has differ- ent districts, where each of the three languages is spoken.

Film Realism. "Do you suppose that was a real brick he hit that man with?" asked the sweet young thing as she and her young man sat watching the motion picture comedy. "Of course it was," replied her es- cort. "You don't suppose after paying an actor $10,000 a week they'd be such tightwads as to ring in a fake brick on him, do you?"

Trees of Alaska. The two national forests of Alaska contain about 78,000,000,000 feet of merchantable timber, and it is esti- mated by the forest service that more than 800,000,000 feet could be cut ev- ery year forever without lessening the forests' productivity.—Tree Talks.

Christian Soldiers. That many of our leading soldiers and sailors are devout Christians is well known. Lord Roberts was wont to say family prayers, and there is the authority of a London vicar for saying that nearly every day Lord Kitchener visited his church and spent a few minutes there in silent prayer. He started the practice very shortly after the commencement of the war. The church was almost in- variably empty when he came, and even when other worshippers were present they did not seem to recog- nize the Secretary for War.

Britain's Revenue. Great Britain's revenue for the year ending March 31 was $1,638,- 875,750, against an aggregate of $1,- 103,206,750 for the preceding fiscal twelvemonth.

prevailed from very early times. Gradually the Crown took the matter into its own hands, raised regiments at its own expense, and recouped it- self by the sale of commissions, ob- taining a regulation price, which varied from time to time, for each step up to that of lieutenant-colonel, above which there was no purchase. When abolition of purchase was car- ried Parliament voted a sum of money to compensate the officers holding saleable commissions in order that they might not lose any- thing through the destruction of the old system.

A regulation price was eventually fixed by the Government, which ran from £420 for a first commission, or ensigny in the line, to £1,200 for the same position in the Guards. Each step was higher in price, and the lowest that a lieutenant-colonelcy could be obtained for was £4,200 in the line and £9,000 in the Guards. In addition to the Government price, what was termed an over-regulation price had to be paid to the retiring officer. This latter fee sometimes ex- ceeded the regulation price, and had been established by custom, although it was contrary to law. When an of- ficer retired the Government hand- ed over to him the price of his com- mission, and his successor paid him the over-regulation fee. There were, however, at all times a number of commissions given free to sons of distinguished officers, especially of such as had been killed in action, and a certain number of nominations were in a similar manner made by the Sovereign. In theory the system of promotion by wealth was absolute- ly indefensible. The hardship of an officer, unable to find money to pur- chase his next step, being superseded by a junior with more wealthy par- ents was altogether repugnant to a sense of justice, and the clamor rais- ed in consequence brought about its abolition in the year 1871.

Pharaoh's Palace. The Museum of the University of Pennsylvania has made public a re- port from Dr. Clarence S. Fisher, leader of the Eckley B. Cox, Jr., ex- pedition to Egypt, in which he tells of what appears to be the discovery that Meremthah had in his palace at Memphis an archeological museum something like those of the present day. Meremthah was the son of Ra-Kitchener Heir in Navy. The new Earl Kitchener's only son and heir, Commander Henry Kitch- ener, will be styled Viscount Broome, after the family seat near Canter- bury, Broome Park. Viscount Broome, who is nearly 40, has been a commander in the navy for several years and has acquired a reputation as a gunnery expert. He has an only sister, Norah, the wife of a captain of artillery. As Viscount Broome is unmarried the second in succession to the Kitchener peerage is now Lt. Henry Kitchener, of the Royal Fly- ing Corps. This young officer, "K. of K.'s nephew, was engaged to be married last March, and the an- nouncement of his betrothal was made on the same day as that of his sister, Philippa.

Senator Belcourt Took Air Trip. Senator Belcourt, while visiting Aldershot, was given what was called a "joy ride" in an aeroplane. The pilot treated him to an extra assort- ment of thrills, going through all the hair-raising aerial manoeuvres he could think of, short of looping the loop. Senator Belcourt was ap- parently relieved to find himself once more on terra firma, and re- marked, that, while he could think of several phrases which would de- scribe his experience, "joy ride" was not one of them.

Light Year. The term "light year" is one used by astronomers. It helps the astronomers to enable the layman to get some sort of idea of the distances from us of the celestial bodies, the light year stand- ing for the distance that light travels in twelve months' time.

The Sickly Golf Players. A golf player who had been badly beaten by his opponent explained to him that he had been suffering all day from neuritis. "It's a curious thing," replied his opponent, "but I've never beaten a man in perfect health in my life." A FAMOUS BATTLEGROUND.

Picardy is Scene of British Victories of Agincourt and Crecy.

If historical associations inspire to brave deeds, the British forces in their offensive against the Germans along the Somme River should be heartened to extraordinary acts of valor by the thought that they are fighting in Picardy, says a war geography bulletin of the National Geographic Society.

This ancient province of France, now divided into four departments—the Somme, Oise, Pas-de-Calais, and Aisne—has two battlefields whose very names quicken the pulse of Englishmen, for it was at Crecy that the Black Prince won his spurs, and Agincourt that Henry V., commanding his yeomen with their cloth-yard bows, utterly overthrew the flower of French chivalry.

Picardy is a treasured name in romantic literature and in French history. It had a literature of its own in the twelfth century and its soldiers were among the most valiant in France, being known as the Gascons of the North.

The province was a natural battleground for the French and English during the Hundred Years' War, for its shores extend along the North Sea and the English Channel, from the River, Aa, above Valais, to a point below Dieppe. Fifteen miles north of Abbeville, one of the principal cities of Picardy, is Crecy, where, until late in the nineteenth century, there still stood the old windmill from which Edward III. of England in 1346 watched his beloved son, the first Prince of Wales, at that time only 16 years of age, triumph over Philip of Valois. On this occasion the English were outnumbered four to one, and they wrought terrible havoc among the enemy, the losses of the vanquished being variously estimated at from 10,000 to 30,000. One of those who fell in this fight was the chivalrous John, King of Bohemia, who, although blind, led a heroic charge for his French ally. Some historians trace the Prince of Wales' crest of three ostrich feathers and the motto "Ich dien" (I serve), to this battle, the Black Prince adopting them from the fallen John in memory of the event.

Less than 20 miles northeast of Crecy is Agincourt, where English archers, nearly 70 years later, after letting fly their clouds of arrows against the heavily armored nobles, attacked them with hatchets as they floundered helplessly in mud. Five thousand Frenchmen of noble birth, including their commander, d'Albret, constable of France, fell in this battle, while the estimate of English losses was astonishingly low, some chroniclers giving only 13 men at arms and 100 foot soldiers.

Several towns of Picardy—Amiens, Soissons, and Beauvais—owe their names to the ancient tribes which inhabited this section, known as Belgica Secunda, when the Romans maintained armed camps along the valley of the Somme. In the third century Christianity was introduced, and St. Quentin, from whom the important town 20 miles east of Peronne gets its name, was martyred at that time.

Picardy was the heart of Merovingian France in the fifth century, for Clovis named Soissons as his capital, while Charlemagne designated Noyon

John Adcock, the distinguished author and critic, who read it, went and interviewed Davies, and wrote a column article for an evening paper on how he found a great poet living in a common doss-house. And it was in this singular fashion that the genius of this Welsh writer became known.

Savages and Their Teeth.

The common idea is that the diet and climatic conditions of the negroes are the cause of their having beautiful teeth, but some authorities dispute this. Thus, in some parts of Africa, when an infant has gone through the "teething period" his mouth is rinsed out with an infusion of leaves of a native tree possessing a constituent which causes the gums to shrink, so tightening the teeth.

The natives living near the source of the Nile employ the roots of a pod-bearing plant to relieve toothache, while another tribe farther west use an infusion of kasso seeds for the same purpose. The toothbrush as used in this country is, of course, unknown to the savages, but many of them have a most effective substitute. They use a piece of wood from certain trees which contain beneficial qualities. Further, this stick is free from the great objection to brushes. It can be renewed at very frequent intervals, and is thus always fresh and wholesome—a great advantage over the toothbrush of civilized races.

Memorial to Warneford.

In the town of Wilts a unique memorial will be erected to Flight Lieutenant Warneford, who brought down a Zeppelin from an aeroplane last summer and was himself killed with a journalist in a flying accident a few days later.

The memorial will be erected by the contributions of the Warneford family in all parts of the world, including the British Isles, France, Italy, India, New Zealand, Canada, and Antigua.

The famous exploit of young Warneford has reunited the family, many members of which had entirely got out of touch with their kinsfolk. The Rev. H. L. Warneford, who organized the memorial work, is to write a family history. The earliest known Warneford was instructor in Greek to Charlemagne, the great conqueror.

Australian Bread Prices.

Details of the regulations fixing the prices of flour and bread in the principal cities of Australia are given in an article in the Melbourne Age. The price of flour is fixed at $54.75 a ton, except in Western Australia, where it is $55.48. The price of bread in states other than Western Australia is fixed at 13.2 for a four-pound loaf sold over the counter, and 14.2 cents in Western Australia. Where a fraction of four pounds is bought a proportionate price is to be charged.

GOT A FREE BATH

He Didn't Really Need It, but That Made No Difference.

JUST SIMPLY HAD TO TAKE IT.

A Visit to a Hospital That Resulted in a Surprise to the Caller and Forced a Conscientious Orderly to Do His Duty as He Saw It.

A very much subdued officer from one of the Italian ships in the port left a Brooklyn hospital the other day after an experience like that of the man who was forced to take mustard with his boiled beef. The officer had been coerced into taking a bath in the hospital, albeit he did not need one any more than his vessel had need of a whiffletree—merely a blunder on the part of an officious but conscientious orderly. The hardy mariner could speak very little English, and that was partly the cause of the trouble.

The hospital in question has dealings with the merchant marine, and many sailors who come into port sick are sent to the institution for medical treatment. It chanced that one of the men from this vessel had been taken to the hospital and had a private room on one of the upper floors. The victim of the bath called to see him and made application in his halting English at the office of the institution. He was able to explain sufficiently that he had called to have a talk with his shipmate, and the superintendent gave him a slip to hand to the nurse, with directions to go to the floor where his comrade was temporarily interned. He went up in the elevator without mishap and encountered a dainty little nurse, to whom in his crude English he explained matters.

She motioned to him to take a seat on a bench that stood along the wall in the hall, and he just understood enough of her talk to know that he would have to wait. He was there about five minutes when the orderly came along.

Now, the bench occupied by the sailor was a bench for new patients. A new patient must submit to a bath unless there are orders to the contrary, and, although this particular ship's officer was as tidy and clean as could be, there were no contrary orders in his case. The orderly naturally supposed that the man on the bench was waiting for his tub and proceeded to get it ready for him. The hospital employee filled the bathtub and led the guest into the room. The water was hot.

"Now take your bath," said the orderly.

The sailor didn't want a bath and shook his head in a vigorous negative. "See here, my good man," proceeded his volunteer valet, "you'll have to take it, and that's all there is about it. It is a rule of the hospital, and you can't stay here unless you jump into that tub."

With a delicacy that is not often met with in men orderlies in city hospitals, this particular official supposed that the new patient might be a bit modest about his tubbing and left him in the bathroom. But he took the precaution

By the treaty of Arras in 1435 the royal towns of the Somme Valley were ceded to Burgundy, but 42 years later, after the death of Charles the Bold, Louis XI. regained them. POET AND TRAMP.

W. H. Davies Called the "Genius in a Doss-House."

Poets seem born to poverty, and the vicissitudes of their lives have provided stories far beyond the imagination of the novelist. Yet even Chatterton, the boy whose poetical genius has since been sung the world over, but who, penniless and starving, locked himself in his London garret, poisoned himself with arsenic, and was buried in the paupers' pit of the Shoe Lane Workhouse, did not suffer the prolonged hardships which Mr. W. H. Davies, the Welsh poet, has had to bear. To-day a Civil pension of £100 a year enables Mr. Davies to live and work in quiet retirement; but he has known what it is to tramp hundreds of miles without a penny in his pocket, earning a livelihood at odd jobs as he went along.

Mr. Davies' literary talent evinced itself when, at a very early age, he wrote a paper at Newport, Mon., where he was born, "In Defence of the Stage," which he read to a religious gathering, and which so startled the deacons that they prophesied for him an unhappy end. Young Davies, however, was not allowed to follow his literary bent. In due course he was apprenticed to a picture-frame maker, and became an efficient workman. The "wanderlust" seized him, however, and when, on the death of his grandmother, he found that he benefited under her will to the extent of a few pounds, he promptly paid for a passage to America, where he proceeded to tramp the States in search of those adventures and experiences which so appealed to him.

It was through trying to board a train that the poet, missing his footing, caught his foot in the step of the car and was dragged several yards, the accident necessitating the amputation of his leg at the ankle.

It was shortly after this that Mr. Davies returned to England, and with his belongings—a cotton shirt, a pair of stockings, and a handkerchief, wrapped up in brown paper, he reached London with a couple of sovereigns in his pocket. Then he settled down to literary work, composing verses, tragedies, and comedies in the kitchen of a doss-house. And as no one would publish his verses, he had a couple of thousand copies printed in pamphlet form, which he hawked from door to door.

In due course he got together a few pounds, which he promptly paid to a London printer to print and bind an edition of 250 copies of his poems. This cost him £19.

Once again, however, he was doomed to disappointment. Nobody would buy the book, and he was thinking of destroying the lot, when it got into the hands of Mr. A. St.

The Soul of a Nation.

The Nelson monument, set among the lions at Trafalgar square; the tattered battleflags in the Church of St. Louis almost touching the tomb of Napoleon, the trophies of war treasured in public galleries in all great nations of the world, are not symbols of victories or of heroes and conquerors, but expressions of that unity of spirit which makes the soul of a nation. There is no true patriotism, no true love of country, without this unity of spirit. No true nation exists or can exist without it. It is a thing which money cannot buy or mere natural wealth create.—George W. Alger in Atlantic Monthly.

The Fearsome Triceratops.

A terrible looking beast, but interesting, as it was the last of the great land reptiles, is the triceratops. It had a head like a rhinoceros; but, unlike the rhinoceros of today, it carried three formidable horns upon its face and a collar of spikes or spines around its neck. Skulls of this creature which have been unearthed measure seven feet and more in length. The animal had a total length of some twenty-five feet. It is the opinion of a great authority on prehistoric beasts that we have here a dinosaur trying to become a mammal. It is the opinion of this expert, too, that the creature got too "specialized" and therefore died out—the usual end of a too great ambition!—London Mail.

new patient might be a bit modest about his tubbing and left him in the bathroom. But he took the precaution to lock him up.

Immediately after the orderly went a bundle of towels and soap came flying out over the transom. The hospital man threw them back again. The man inside just as promptly returned them flying back. A third time the towels and soap were thrown out, and this made the orderly angry. He went in and had it out with the recalcitrant.

"You've just got to take that bath, my man, and that is all there is about it. If you don't I'll bathe you myself."

The man evidently understood that there was no escape and, probably supposing that it was a custom of the hospital to bathe all visitors, proceeded to disrobe and dutifully jumped in. The orderly was satisfied and went about his other duties.

The man's visit to the hospital had been a long one, and the superintendent called up on the house telephone to find out what had become of him. The trim little nurse was asked to explain. She did not know where he had gone.

"I left him sitting on the bench here," she said, "and when I looked for him again he had disappeared."

Nobody had seen him go out. The elevator man was questioned, and he could not tell what had become of him. The mystery deepened until the orderly was found.

"Are you looking for the man on the bench?" he asked. "He's having a bath. He would not take it at first, and I just locked him in."

The involuntary bather was released, and many apologies were offered to him. He was permitted to visit his friend, and, sick as the patient was, he had a hearty laugh over his friend's odd experience. And the sailor in his very best English, which the trim little nurse untidily declared to be "lingo," said that after he had his bath he felt better and added that he forgave everybody, even the orderly.

"Asia Minor" a Puzzle.

"Asia Minor" is a geographical term of vague extension. It would puzzle any one to say exactly where it leaves off. The name dates only from the fifth century (A. D.), when Orosius used it evidently as a novelty. The Roman empire knew no Asia Minor. Indeed, the Roman province of "Asia" was actually smaller than this lesser Asia. The alternative name Anatolia (land of the sunrise or east), which has found favor with the Turks, is equally indeterminate.—London Spectator.

BREAD UPON THE WATERS.

An Ancient Legend That Every One Should Know by Heart.

There is an ancient legend of a man who faced the great day of final reckoning. He had lived as well perhaps as most of us while here below. At last he stood before the Judge of all the earth. His record was unfolded. The face of the Judge seemed to him to grow clouded as he traced its story. The record was pushed aside. The eyes of the Judge were lifted until they rested upon the man. The lips were parted as if the sentence was about to fall.

Suddenly from every quarter there gathered a shining host of forms which pressed about the judgment seat. They appeared to be in conference with the Judge. It looked as though with eager faces they were urging certain claims. Then they vanished from sight as mysteriously as they came. The Judge smiled, turned to a messenger clad in radiant robes of office and bade him conduct the man whose case he had just considered into the realms of the blessed.

As they moved away the man said to his guide, "Tell me, who were those who just now stood in numbers about the Judge and held converse with him?"

"Those," replied the conductor, "were friends who saved you. They were the deeds of kindness and of unselfish service you scattered far and wide while you lived on earth."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

TYPHOID FEVER is a severe disease coming on with headache, rise of temperature, diarrhoea, and abdominal distention. It always occurs as the result of taking into one's stomach food or drink contaminated with the body discharges. These discharges may enter one's mouth in water which has been polluted with sewage containing typhoid germs, with milk or food to which the germs have been carried by flies, by dirty hands, by dirty water, etc., or by direct contact with a person ill of typhoid fever. It is also distributed by "carriers," that is by persons who, though immune to the disease themselves, carry the germs of the disease in their intestines and transmit it to others through the discharges reaching food, etc. "Typhoid Mary," the New York cook who gave the disease to a large number of people before she was locked up, is a typhoid example of a typhoid carrier. People who have typhoid fever may carry the disease for a long time and be a source of danger to others, especially if they have anything to do with the preparation of food.

Typhoid fever is rather common about the farms especially if a single case has occurred in a neighborhood where there is any chance of the general water supply, such as a spring, stream, or lake, receiving the intestinal discharges of the sick person. A typical example of this occurred in connection with an outbreak of the disease at Plymouth, Pa., in 1885. Plymouth is a mining town with a population at the time of the outbreak of about 8,000. Its water-supply was obtained from a mountain stream draining an almost uninhabited watershed, and the water for the town was impounded in a series of four impounding reservoirs. In January a man living up stream, who had spent his Christmas holidays in Philadelphia, became ill at his home. The excreta were not disinfected but were thrown either into the frozen creek or upon its snow-covered banks. In March there came a spring thaw and the accumulations of excreta were washed down the stream. Three weeks later there was an acute outbreak of typhoid fever in the little town. In some days as many as 100 cases occurred. One thousand and four cases were reported. There were, it is estimated, altogether 1,500 cases and the deaths numbered 114. The infection was most marked in those who used the town water supply, the epidemic being limited to the users of this water. Those who used well water escaped the disease. This epidemic of typhoid was studied and definitely traced to its source by competent observers, and is a marked example of the necessity of protection of public water supplies.

We are not exempt from such lessons in Ontario. The outbreak of typhoid in Ottawa in 1911 and again in 1913, and that of the town of Sarnia in 1911-12, all of which were proven to have occurred as the result of sewage-polluted water, have been sharp lessons in our own province, lessons unhappily which have not yet convinced the respective civic authorities of the necessity of adequate protection of their water-supplies.

In the majority of cases the well is the chief and usually the only source of water supply. It is in many cases a safe supply, especially if it is a deep or driven well and more particularly if it is well protected against surface drainage. But many farm wells are shallow with the curb made of unjointed timber or stone which allow of easy drainage to the well. The covering is often of loose boards through which surface impurities may easily run. The danger is slight unless the impurities contain, which they may easily do, the excreta of persons carelessly thrown upon the ground. If the excreta comes from a person affected with typhoid the danger is imminent, and there is almost a certainty that users of the water will suffer from the disease. The moral is plain: PROTECT THE WELL!

Summer Diarrhoea kills a large number of babies every summer. It is preventable if care is taken with the babies' food. If at all severe call the doctor at once. In any case it is always safe to give a dose of the good old-fashioned castor oil. That is one of the mother remedies to be banked upon. If the diarrhoea is severe cut off all food, especially MILK, which is death to a baby with diarrhoea, but give boiled water in as large amounts as the baby would have of food. In older children give only water and gruel or dry toast. But get a doctor at once.

Value of the Kangaroo's Tail.

So important is the kangaroo's tail in his rapid progress that experienced hunters with guns are accustomed to fire at the point where this appendage joins the body, when, the tail being disabled for its office of balancing, the animal is as effectually stopped as if hamstrung. Hit elsewhere, except with a rifle bullet at point blank range, the kangaroo is pretty likely to get off. One peculiarity of the kangaroo is that, after being started up, he very rarely swerves from his course, through which peculiarity he is easily "potted" by hunters, who conceal themselves while a man on horseback drives the herd toward them.

Australia's "Slackers."

Australia has recruiting troubles also. The Sydney, N. S. W., Herald says on the subject:

As a member of the recruiting staff put it—something will have to be done. "Look at the trams going to the race course last Saturday!" he said: "They were packed to suffocation with young men all, or rather the majority, of military age. They had already seen the cables telling of the fight in the North Sea, but that would not appeal to them. It was the most disgusting sight I ever witnessed, and yet these people arrogate to themselves the name of sports. While these young able-bodied men, who should be forced into the firing line if they won't volunteer, were going out to back their fancy in thousands, we had an example which would shame them if they were capable of shame. A white-haired man came into the office and unblushingly gave his age as 44 years and 11 months. 'Just in time,' he said, 'can't help my hair being white; that was due to a shock.' We passed him through only to learn the next day that his real age was 70. That would make a good story for the 'real sports' in Pitt Street to-day, who come to cottle up and collect their winnings, but you can't do anything except conscription with these 'real sports.' What would make them blush would make an ordinary man leave the country."

Arranged With Enemy.

There's a story going the rounds just now that shows how Austria was deprived of one of her fighting men.

A visitor to a West-end restaurant in London, being waited on by a particularly tall and fine-looking waiter with a foreign accent, asked the man his nationality.

"Oh, I'm a Hungarian."

"How comes it, then, that a big, strong fellow like you is not in the firing line?" asked the visitor.

"Well, sir, it's like this," replied the knight of the napkin, pointing to a brother waiter a few tables off. "You see that man? Well, he's a Serb, and we have vat you call 'paired.'"

FOR FLETCHER'S

Orator. In this country few people know anything about Joe Devlin, as he is affectionately called by the Nationalists, but he is a man who counts in the Emerald Isle. He will probably play a greater part in helping Mr. Lloyd George to clear up Irish affairs than even Mr. Redmond or Sir Edward Carson. For Devlin, like the Minister of Munitions, possesses that genius, energy, and courage which leads the people to put their whole trust and confidence in him.

One of his secrets of his success lies in the fact that he is a son of the people. Born forty-four years ago of working class parents, Joe Devlin has made his way by sheer genius and native ability.

"Joe Devlin," said Mr. T. P. O'Connor on one occasion, when writing about the member for Belfast, "has intense sympathy with the poor. He loves them. He goes to their homes. He knows nearly every man, woman, and child in his constituency by sight and by name. He addresses them as they address him by their Christian names."

After leaving school, Joe Devlin began to make his way in the world as a boy of eleven, and there is a certain little public-house in Belfast where at one time he served as a barman. But he had ambitions even in the days when serving out beer and spirits. When he was sixteen he won a prize for elocution, and it was about this time that he made a speech the eloquence of which astonished Thomas Sexton, one of the most gifted modern orators Ireland has ever produced. He drew from Sexton a compliment which thousands of our public schoolboys might envy. "I regret," he said, "the rule which obliges all members of the House of Commons to be at least 21 years of age."

It was Devlin's connection with a political debating society which fired his ambition for a political career. He soon became known as one of Ireland's youngest and most courageous stalwarts. On three occasions he was sent to the United States on behalf of the Irish party, his eloquence and organizing ability arousing such admiration that, when he ultimately returned, he was put in charge of the National Organization in Ireland.

For ten years Mr. Devlin has represented West Belfast in Parliament, and in spite of considerable physical disadvantage—for he is one of the tiniest men at Westminster—he is recognized as an orator, organizer, and parliamentarian of the greatest brilliance.

In Ireland he wields a unique power. He is the general secretary of the United Irish League, the official organization of the Irish party, which has branches in America, Australia, and South Africa. He is also head of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, probably the largest and most influential organization of the Catholic laity in the world.

Anzac Slang.

The vocabulary of some of the Australian and New Zealand troops would puzzle Solomon himself, judging by some of the specimens given in that entertaining periodical, The Gazette of the 3rd London General Hospital, Wandsworth. The following dialogue is quoted by a transport officer lately in Gallipoli:

"Halloa, chum! I've just heard some bonza news."

saying they have had mafeesh tucker for two days."

Bonza corresponds with our "ripping" or "tophole." A furdie is a rumor, drinkum means "genuine," and dinkum oil "authenticated news." Imshi is Gippy for "clear out," and mafeesh, which is borrowed from the same tongue, means "nothing."

When an Australian wishes to acquire something he "shakes it," whereas the British Tommy either "makes it" or "scrumps it." Tommy's slang is largely derived from Hindustani, and includes such words as "chipperow" for "shut up," "put some jilli into it," meaning "burry up," and "let's have a dekkoo," when he wants to have a look at something.

Pozzy is jam—cherb, beer—rooty, bread—dough, money—fippo, gravy—muckim, butter—char, tea. "Swinging the lead" is pretending or deceiving. When an article is "spare" it means that it is not wanted.

Shakespeare's Benefactors.

Of the millions who keep Shakespeare's memory green to-day, how many have even heard of Heminge and Condell? Yet, to the faithful labors of these two poor players we owe the first attempt to give the world a complete edition of Shakespeare's plays. No collected edition of the poet's work was issued in his lifetime, nor did many of the plays even find their way to print, until John Heminge and Henry Condell, Shakespeare's intimate friends and fellow-actors, took the task of publication in hand, disclaiming "ambition either of self-profit or fame in undertaking the design," and being moved solely by desire "to keep the memory of so worthy a friend and fellow alive as was our Shakspeare."

Prizes for Hyphen War Babies.

$150,000 for Wounded.

Mrs. A. H. Scott, the organizer of the sale at the Caledonian Market in London in support of the funds for the wounded of the Allied countries, states that the magnificent sum of $150,000 has been received to date. Certain amounts are outstanding, and there are still some things to be sold. Lady Markham, for instance, had about 600 tons of coal—so that she hoped the grand total would ultimately be nearer $175,000. This was a most astonishing result when, before the sale, the most sanguine view was that $100,000 would be realized. The stall-holders whose receipts were highest were: Lady Markham (coal), Hon. Mrs. Charles Craven, Mrs. A. H. Scott, Mrs. Mathias, Lady Paget, Australian Stall, Italian Stall, and Lady Perley (Canada). Between 70,000 and 80,000 people visited the market.

LATE MRS. STANFORD.

On Sunday morning the death occurred in Kingston of Katherine, wife of Thomas Stanford, Marlbank, after an illness extending from October last. The deceased was born in Marlbank, and the greater part of her life was spent in that place. Besides her husband she leaves one small daughter, Theresa. There are also left to mourn her loss four sisters, Mrs. G. Stanford of Kingston; Margaret, Theresa, and Anna, of Marlbank; and two brothers, John with the C. A. M. C., and Michael in Marlbank. Her father, Michael O'Connor, also survives. The funeral took place on Monday to the Marlbank cemetery.

Barn Burned.

On Wednesday afternoon, Mr. W. H. Nugent, Clarksville Road, had the misfortune to loose a large barn with contents. A spark from a burning bush pile, some distance from the barn, fell on the barn roof and set it on fire. Mr. Nugent noticed the fire and climbing on the roof tore the burning shingles off with his hands. He succeeded in putting the fire out on the roof, but some sparks fell inside the barn on some straw and in a few minutes the barn was a mass of

PROMINENT MUSICIAN HAS TAK- EN UP HIS RESIDENCE IN NAPA- NEE.

In another column of this week's issue our readers will notice Professor Baird's professional card. The professor comes to our town most highly recommended as a musician and teacher, many of his former vocal pupils being now paid soloists in prominent churches. He not only teaches vocal, but is recognized as one of the best teachers in Ontario of piano and pipe organ. A number of his pupils hold good positions at organists in town and city churches, one of note securing a position in St. Catharines at $800.00 a year. Among his recommendations the Mayor of Picton says:
"He is an excellent musician, and has trained and kept up a male quartette and orchestra which has been the pride of our town." Before coming to Canada he conducted one of the foremost military bands in Belfast, Ireland, and has followed this up by training some exceptionally efficient orchestras in Picton and Colbourg, also massed choirs, one notable instance of this being the massed choir (including St. Gregory's, St. Andrews, First Methodist Church, and Main St.
Methodist, of Picton) which he trained last spring. The efficiency of this large choir of about 100 voices has not been excelled by anything in Eastern Ontario. His many testimonials from the old land, as well as Canada, include those from such men as "The Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick," Rev. Dr. S. J. Shorey," "Judge Huyek, of Peterboro." His playing of Trinity church organ has already won the appreciation of the congregation, and he has proved himself a gifted organist of a high order.
The music loving public of Napanee think themselves highly favored to have so talented a musician residing in their community.

Our Home Company.

The Lennox and Addington Mutual Fire Insurance Co., A LEADER, the agents of the L & A laid before the directors at their regular monthly meeting in August, 73 policies, (new and renewed), aggregating an insur- ance of $145,775: which goes to show that the farmers of these counties appreciate home industry and a policy framed to suit the particular interests of the farmer, and having the head office in our own home town, where you can do business direct with the officials of the company, when in town on your farm business. The L and A is handing out a policy, blank- eting all contents of your dwelling in one lump sum, blanketing implements and all farm utensils in one sum, in any outbuilding on the farm and in- suring stock anywhere on the prem- ises or anywhere the insured has reason to pasture. Prompt settle- ments in case of loss—do business with men of your own class and insure in the Lennox & Addington and build up your own community.
